How Some Victoria Financiers express themselves concerning the Dominion Co-operative Home-Building Association.

The manager of a city financial institution says: "Why, you have a good thing. You get 10 per cent on your transactions."

This is entirely wrong, and we will give to the public the whole truth. This is the first correct intelligent solution of the problem, and explain how we got the following figures, which were given in answer to the above: If one got all men paid what we would receive, $10 per month minimum on the investment, but we only receive 1-10 of this amount, which is less than 1-10 of the amount named by the manager.

The problem is: We furnish a man with a $1,000 home on which he pays $5.50 per month. $5.00 is credited to his account as payment on the home, the balance of 50c. goes to the Asylum, and after taxes and expenses, in 20 months he owns the home. What per centage of interest per annum does he pay?

Answers must be handed into the office 19 Broad Street before 11 a.m. on Tuesday, October 21st.

The Strike Will End

Meeting of Miners Unions Executive Call Convention For Next Monday.

They Will Recommend That the Men Return to Work.

And That Differences Be Referred to Commission Appointed By President.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 16.—The following official announcement was issued from the White House early this morning: "After a conference with Mr. Mitchell and some further conference with representatives of the coal operators, the President has appointed commissioners to inquire into conditions and pass a resolution at issue between the operators and miners in the anthracite coal fields. They are as follows:

Brigadier-General John M. Wilson, late chief of engineers, U. S. A.

E. W. Parker, of Washington, connected with the United States geological survey, as expert mining engineer. Judge Geo. Gray, of Delaware, as judge of a United States court.

E. Clark, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, grand chief of the Order of Railroad Conductors, as a sociologist.

Thomas H. Watkins, of Scranton, Pa., as a man practically acquainted with the mining and selling of coal.

Bishop John L. Spaulding, of Peoria, Ill.

Carroll D. Wright, recorder of commission.

Wilkesbarre, Oct. 16.—On receipt of the announcement of the formation of the commission, President Mitchell issued the following statement:

"Appreciating the anxiety and importance of the public and the miners over our mining difficulties, I issue this bulletin from this office, I issue this bulletin to say that I was unutterably opposed to the acceptance of or acquiescence in the form of settlement proposed by the coal operators, because it restricted the President of the United States in making selection of the men who were to determine the questions involved in the coal strike. These restrictions having been removed, and representation given to the organization by itself as well as to organized capital, I am now prepared to give my personal approval to a settlement of the issues involved in this strike by the commission selected by the President, and shall recommend to the executive officers of districts 1, 7 and 9 in their meeting today that an immediate call be issued for a convention, whose authorization is necessary to declare the strike at an end. In the meantime I trust that the people of our country will be patient as possible, as we are investigating as rapidly as the interests of our people will permit."

The news from Washington early this morning that both parties to the anthracite coal strike had reached an agreement to arbitrate, was received throughout this entire region with the greatest satisfaction.

After Mr. Mitchell issued his statement he held a conference with the district presidents and secretaries at which a vote to let the arbitration proposition be voted upon by the full membership of three boards was discussed. This conference lasted for some time.

The meeting of the executive boards of the mine workers union met today and as a result of their deliberations the following was issued:

"To the officers and members of all local unions in the districts: Gentlemen, at a recent conference the executive board of districts 1 and 9 in the anthracite coal strike agreed to issue a call for a delegated convention, and recommend to that convention that all mine workers now on strike return to their former positions and working places and submit to the commission appointed by the President of the United States all questions at issue between the operators and mine workers of the anthracite coal fields.

In pursuance whereof you are hereby notified that convention will be held on the 10th of November, 1902, beginning at 10 a.m. Monday, October 19.

"The purpose of the convention will be to act on the proposition submitted by the President of the United States. Local unions will hold meetings not later than Friday night and name delegates to attend said convention.

"The basis of representations will be on vote of each hundred members or less, and an additional vote for each hundred hundred members, majority fraction thereof. The president and secretary of each local union will fill out one credential and one duplicate credential for each delegate elected. The duplicate credential should be given to the delegate elected and the original should be placed in the hands of the district board members not later than Saturday night. The district board members are instructed to have all credentials in the hands of the credential committee and in their office. It is recommended that delegates be given full power and authority to act in behalf of their local unions.

"The name of the hall in which the convention will be held will be announced later. Hotel accommodations are being arranged and will be announced to delegates upon their arrival. Respectfully submitted on behalf of the executive boards of districts 1, 7 and 9.

"(Signed) JOHN MITCHELL, President United Mine Workers of America.

W. B. WILSON, Secretary.

G. HARTLING, Secretary of Meeting.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 16.—The superintendent of one of the largest coal companies in the region was asked today how long it would take after the miners returned to work to bring about normal coal prices, and in reply he said: "It is the general understanding among the companies that only normal prices shall prevail after there is a general resumption of mining. All through the strike the companies have not charged abnormal prices. The middlemen or retail dealers have taken advantage of the situation and put up the prices. It is possible they will keep them up until the public is fully supplied, and the demand is not greater than the production. It is not definitely known how long it will take the companies to make the supply meet the demand. The present conditions at the coalfields are so different that no close estimate can be made."

Washington, Oct. 16.—The work of the miners' commission will be exhaustive and will take considerable time. It is the present desire that the inquiry be performed the labor set before it completely, not only that a more adjourned meeting be made, but that similar troubles may be averted in the future. Its first step will be to organize and select a chairman. Who this will be of course is not settled, but depends on the individual character of the body. Gen. Wilson, formerly chief of the engineer corps of the army, however heads the list of members, and may be chosen as chairman of the commission.

A MICHIGAN TRAGEDY.

Wholesale Murders by Man in Jealous Fury.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich., Oct. 13.—Archie Woodin, in a fit of jealous fury today killed his father-in-law and mother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Guleck, his one-year-old child and attempted to shoot himself. His wound is not fatal. The tragedy occurred at Guleck's farm, near here. Woodin and his wife had quarreled, and his wife had left him and gone to the home of her parents today. Woodin went there to take her, on the child away, and got into an altercation with Guleck. Woodin, it is supposed, shot his father-in-law. He attacked Mrs. Guleck with a knife, cutting her throat, and killed the baby.

An interesting function took place at the city hospital on Wednesday in the presence of the Mayor and several medical men of the city, when several nurses were presented with diplomas of efficiency. A short description of the progress of a training school in connection with the hospital was given by the honorary superintendent, Mr. McPadden. The affair also took the form of the formal opening of the nurses' school. The school now contains 17 pupil nurses. During one term 110 applications were received to enter the school, and 28 were accepted. Four nurses received their diplomas at the commencement exercises.

UNDER THE RED ROBE

Neill's Play to Large Audience in Dramatization of Weyman's Novel.

"Under the Red Robe," Ed. Rose's dramatization of Stanley Weyman's picture romance of the same name—a tale which deals with love and honor, chivalry and intrigue, villainy and gallantry, a tale of the swashbuckling days of the weak Louis and the strong Richelieu, was ably presented by James Neill and his associates at the Victoria theatre last night to a crowded house.

"Under the Red Robe," Ed. Rose's dramatization of Stanley Weyman's picture romance of the same name—a tale which deals with love and honor, chivalry and intrigue, villainy and gallantry, a tale of the swashbuckling days of the weak Louis and the strong Richelieu, was ably presented by James Neill and his associates at the Victoria theatre last night to a crowded house.

Although Mr. Neill lacks the spark and vim which makes the great romantic actor, he gave a fair presentation of the role of Gil de Berault, the gamester and ne'er-do-well, condemned duellist, who took his life from Richelieu to act the spy, the traitor for the great Cardinal of France, but in the crucial moment of the love of the woman he loved, when the duel was fought and the victim was slain, he failed to do justice to the character.

Miss Elythe Chapman had a strong emotional part, to which her talents are well adapted, in the role of Renée de Cochefort, and more than once she won great applause for her strong, winsome, sprightly acting.

When the traitor became apparent at the castle of Cochefort, and again at the cross roads—the parting of the ways—where her distrust in Gil de Berault, her beloved, is finally overcome. Again in the palace of the Cardinal her emotional acting in that final scene won her great applause.

For Mac-Iver, the unimpassioned and materialistic characterization of Richelieu, drawing that great man of France with satisfaction, not as the broken Richelieu oftentimes seen on the stage, an old man grown weary in intrigue, but as a towering and stalwart statesman, confident of his ability and power as the real ruler of France. His acting—particularly on that historic day when Richelieu saw the execution of Diane—when those who had fawned about him fled like rats from a sinking ship—was very good. George Blonquist, ever a clever actor, gave a finely drawn presentation of the dandy, Capt. Le Roll, and John W. Burton made a good Lieutenant Julius McVicker, who played out the troupe role of Sir Thomas Brumby and the tongue-tied clown, the spy whose tongue-tied him to the moment of victory at the siege of Breda, did very good work in the latter part.

Miss Gertrude Keller, the clever ingenue of the company, did some very effective work as the fear-stricken wife of the hidden Henri de Cochefort, a part which it often seemed scope was ably played by Donald Bowles. Louise Brownell made a pretty and dainty Juliet.

Several curtain calls were given during some of the more striking tableau, in which the play is replete. Each scene had a striking climax, and the attention of the audience is maintained until the curtain falls. Then, too, the play has been adequately and even elegantly produced, the costumes being handsome and the singing excellent. Tonight Chas. Klein's "The Hon. John Grigsby," will be presented.

Boxer Rising In Szechuan

Some Features of Insurrection as Told By Letters From Chinese.

How Capt. Chou Was Trapped and Slain By a Party of Rebels.

The Boxer troubles in Szechuan, according to reliable authorities, are without doubt the beginning of another foreign movement in China which threatens serious results. The North China Daily Mail says, under recent date: The fact that armed Boxers have actually entered the capital of Szechuan, is very serious. To dare to enter the city at all, they must be in strong force outside, and must have considerable control over the Chinese soldiers, as well as a firm belief in their own invulnerability. It is possible that the men who have entered Chengtu are merely a handful of fanatics, who have been invited by sympathizers in the city, or they may be the advanced guard of a real rebellion with which the new viceroy will have much trouble in coping.

The same paper has the following translation of a letter from a Chinese residing at Chungking, which was written by Boxers that may throw some light on the state of affairs in that region prior to the episode noted above. In the meanwhile the news received by the local mandarins from that quarter make them consider the situation in Szechuan to be sufficiently serious as to produce grave doubts whether H. E. Ts'en Ch'u-hsun, the new viceroy, will be able to suppress the rising now commencing, especially in Szechuan province with the resources within his reach at the present moment. As matter of fact Viceroy Ts'en will have at his disposal, when he takes over his seals of office in Chengtu—that is to say, if the Boxers will let him—a rabble of some 42,000 odd, ragged and ill-provided beggars who stagger under the burden of the ghastly appellation of the Terror-inspiring Grand Army, whose President Ensures Peace and Quiet to the most distant places." Only 4,000 of this conglomeration are in Chengtu, amongst whom are some artillerists belonging to the Vieeregal Guards. These last are about the best of a sorry lot, but they have only two or three old-fashioned Armstrong field pieces with them, and their big arms are of the old pattern breech-loading type, remaining 8,000, or so territorial army of Szechuan, are scattered about the provinces, 3,000 of whom are with Provincial Judge Ch'en Yu, supposed to be guarding certain passes in the hills, in the vicinity of Chengtu, into which several "armies" of Boxers had been driven some time ago to prevent their reappearing in the plains. So far about official news. The private information given runs as follows: On the 20th of August, hearing that there was a gathering of some 600 Boxers at a place called Hungthao, some five miles outside the North gate of Chengtu city, who were intending to make a night attack on a Christian church situated on a neighboring hill, the viceroy sent a Captain Chou with 50 men to accompany a Capt. Fu, with 50 men to accompany Capt. Chou, with 50 men to accompany Capt. Fu, with 50 men to accompany Capt. Chou, and I have come to arm certain Boxers who were collecting at a spot further away. As soon as a broad shout, warning the Boxers inside the farmhouse that their friends outside were about to fall on the soldiers, they made a detour to attack the soldiers, and after a skirmish and many rounds, he, it notes, retreated at a spot further away.

NEWFOUNDLAND RAILWAY.

Mr. Reid's Company Awarded a Large Sum of Money.

The arbitrators in the Reid-Newfoundland Railway case have rendered their decision. The Reid company is awarded a sum of $854,000.

The questions at issue arose out of an arrangement for the construction and operation of the Newfoundland Railway, made by Mr. R. G. Reid of Montreal, with the government of Newfoundland. The government, finding itself in financial difficulties after financial collapse on the island, made an agreement with Mr. Reid to finish the construction of the railway, and to take over the telegraph lines, coastal steamship services and St. John's drydock. The legislature ratified this by a pronounced majority, and it was recognized by many as the best way out of the situation that existed, as it relieved the colony of considerable financial responsibility. It was later attacked by the opposition and Sir Robert Bond, who succeeded in the general elections, and found himself under the necessity of coming to a new arrangement. After prolonged negotiations a new arrangement was made by which Mr. Reid, who had been prevented from turning his property over to the company, to receive $1,000,000 and interest at 6 per cent, was settled by cash or bonds; the bonds were to be taken at 8% and to bear interest at 3 1/2 per cent. Mr. Reid returned to the colony a million and a half acres of the land grant he had earned, he having the right of selecting the location of said lands, for which the government agrees to pay him $850,000 cash. Mr. Reid surrendered the telegraph lines, receiving compensation for improvements and increases the amount to be settled by arbitration. He also retained one wire for the railway's services. There was also a claim made by Mr. Reid under the original contract for construction work, etc., not covered by the settlement. The government admitted that the work had been done, and his right to be paid for it. The only question was as to the value, which was agreed should be fixed by arbitration. At the end of fifty years Mr. Reid, or the company representing him, and which has been formed, is to be paid on surrender of the road for any additions and improvements that have been made during that period, the amount to be subject to arbitration. The original subsidy vote for running the railway—$42,000 a year for fifty years—was continued, as well as the steamer subsidy of $97,000, which is to go on for thirty years.

While the work of the lumberman is healthful and invigorating, he is also exposed to inclement weather and severe strain at times. With one or two exposed colds are frequent and very frequently they settle in the kidneys and result in weak, back and bone pain. The King of Lumbraeans, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in preference to the medicines prescribed by the hospital doctors. They have learned to do so because the best results are secured by this treatment.

John Campbell, lumberman, Severn Bridge, Ont., states: "I am a lumberman, and as a result of exposure as well as the strain of using the axe all day I became afflicted with kidney disease, and my back and bone pain. My kidneys were out of order, and the pains at times were dreadful to bear."

"I tried many remedies without success until I began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which at once began to help me, and have effected a complete cure. My sons have also used these pills for the same purpose, and we would not think of going without them in the house."

I have recommended them to a great many lumbermen and others."

EXPLORATION OF CODY COVE

Interesting Subterranean Chambers of Great Size Near Ainsworth.

From Nelson Daily News

About a mile from the Number One mine, and within half a mile of a certain point on the road leading to that mine, is situated the cave which is known to the people of Ainsworth as Cody's cave, from the fact that it was discovered by Mr. Henry Cody, now a resident of Kaslo. This cave was discovered many years ago. When Mr. R. A. Pocock, the author, was in Ainsworth 12 years ago he explored partially a cave which he entitled "The Noble Five," in which it figures to a considerable extent. Mr. Pocock stayed in Ainsworth nearly all summer, and wrote and published the story at the time, but it was republished in the Argosy of November, 1889. In this story, which contains seven chapters, and occupies 18 pages of the Argosy, it was 12 years ago and also of Cody's cave, which Mr. Pocock calls the Queen Victoria cave.

As during all the years in which the existence of the cave had been known, no thorough exploration of it had been made, a party was recently formed for that purpose, consisting of Messrs. Findlay, George Lingard, Clarence Hart, and Mr. and Mrs. Morrison, Master David Hart and John Simms.

Equipped with lanterns, candlesticks, an axe, a rope 30 feet long, for measuring, and other necessities, the party left Ainsworth, and arrived in good time at the cave, having picked up a first-class appetite on the way.

They found the entrance to be about ten feet wide and four feet high. It was necessary to stoop a little when going in. Within a few feet of the entrance, however, all the members of the party were able to stand erect and found themselves in a large chamber, 180 feet long, 50 feet wide in places, and probably 20 feet high. To the right of this chamber was another about 40 feet long and 20 feet wide, but more irregularly formed than the one first entered. A passage, about 50 feet long, was also found, leading from the first chamber in another direction, but it was not always possible to stand quite erect when walking in it.

On reaching the end of the main entrance chamber, at a distance of 180 feet from the open air, the party came upon a stream of open water, and found themselves between two waterfalls, the upper one being about four feet high, and the lower one having a perpendicular shaft of about 12 feet. It is easier to travel the entire 1,800 feet in comfort. At present ladies can travel in comfort for only about 1,000 feet, which, however, is sufficient to give them a good view of the surroundings.

Such so little work would make it possible and comparatively easy for anyone to go anywhere throughout the entire length, standing erect, it is to be hoped that steps will be taken to secure such a result.

If three or four men who understand mining were to take a little dynamite to the cave and work a few hours, they could make it possible for ladies to travel the entire 1,800 feet in comfort. At present ladies can travel in comfort for only about 1,000 feet, which, however, is sufficient to give them a good view of the surroundings.

Having constructed a serviceable ladder, 12 feet long, they descended to the bottom of the lower fall, and then went down the stream a distance of 180 feet. They were able to stand erect most of this distance, and found another waterfall four feet high. They found the stream disappeared in a hole of unknown depth, beyond which it would be impossible to pass as the water occupied the entire passage. They retraced their steps, therefore, and found themselves again between the two waterfalls and below the upper one.

Climbing to the top of the upper fall, which it was possible to do without a ladder, they made their way up the stream, and soon reached the central chamber of the cave, which they found to be 300 feet long, from 10 to 30 feet wide, and from 15 to 20 feet high. They found extensive ramifications on both sides of this central chamber. On the

ESSAYS ON CANADA.

Interesting Old Country Children in the Dominion.

The London correspondent of the Montreal Gazette writes on September 27: "The Canadian government emigration department is to be congratulated on the success of its efforts to interest the young people in this country in Canada. This year 800 schools entered for the prize essay competition. Many thousands of essays were sent in by the boys and girls, who showed a wonderful acquaintance with Canadian history and geography. One medal is awarded to each school, and this week they will be given to the successful competitors. The medal bears on one side the arms of Canada, and on the other a representation of the Canadian arch, surrounded by a chapter of maple leaves, and enclosed in the medal case is a card with the inscription: 'Presented on behalf of the Government of Canada with the compliments and best wishes of the Minister of the Interior, Ottawa, Canada.' The subject of geography is often neglected in our elementary schools, and when it is taught it is made unattractive. This happy idea of the Canadian government department is doing useful service to British Imperialism, while it is serving Canada by teaching our young people the geography of the most important country of Greater Britain."

THE ALASKA BOUNDARY.

Some little time ago the New York Post published an elaborate answer to the article on this question of the Alaskan Boundary by Thomas Hodgins, K. C., in the Canadian Law Review, and the Contemporary Review. The New York Evening Post is under no delusion as to the strength and importance of Canadian opinion on this subject. Unlike the majority of the newspapers in the United States, it does not dismiss Canadian opinion with contempt as an immaterial factor. It admits that a feeling of wrong and injustice on the part of six millions of people bound together by strong national ties and full of devotion to the interests of their country, is a very serious thing, something not by any means to be ignored. "Congress also," it says, "in ignoring for session after session the settlement of a question which was bound to produce international irritation as the Alaskan country became better populated, has incurred a grave responsibility. Our Canadian cousins have a just right to complain of this, however wrong they may be in some other matters." At the same time, the New York Evening Post very strongly espouses the cause of the United States. It declares what everyone admits, that the chain of mountains appearing on Vancouver's maps is mythical and that the ten marine league boundary from the coast line is the boundary line to be adopted. It goes on to show that Russia claimed the ownership of the waters of the inlets and leased them to the Hudson's Bay Company, as follows:

When the treaty of 1827 was made between Russia and Great Britain, in which our treaty of 1867 is a replica in its essentials, the Russian-American Company maintained a fishery for sealers in the archipelago of southeastern Alaska which was the chief source of the company's revenue. Members of the imperial family and their court were among the stockholders. *

The Russian Company and the court desired to safeguard their sea-otters from the Hudson's Bay Company, which was engaged in extending its trading-posts into the interior, and, while they were willing to permit navigation of the rivers by which the interior could be reached, they determined to make themselves secure against trading-posts on the coast by which the sea-otters of Russia might be depleted. This they effected by obtaining a continuous strip of coast (discrete) which they held for years, later leased for a time to the Hudson's Bay Company, and finally sold to the United States. Great Britain had the free navigation of the rivers (leaves, which Mr. Hodgins mis-translates "waters"), and for a period of ten years was also allowed to navigate the inlets. The limitation of time in the latter case, however, at once and forever put anathema upon all territorial waters to the Hudson's Bay Company, and the Hudson's Bay Company afterwards paid an annual rent for many years for the privilege. These facts are sedulously ignored and left unmentionable by Mr. Hodgins and other Canadian writers, who do not even quote the part of the treaty in which this is set forth.

This argument, it appears to us, supports precisely the opposite conclusion from that advanced by the United States. If these inlets were and are territorial waters and not open sea, then the coast line runs from point to point of their entrances, and does not follow their sinuosities. The ten marine leagues, in other words, are to be measured from the coast line, and not from points at the head of territorial arms of the sea many miles inland. The liberty of navigation reserved to Great Britain is precisely what we would expect under such circumstances, so that points in British territory which could not be reached except by the navigation of territorial waters should have the privilege of so doing recognized and protected. The New York Evening Post apologizes for the refusal of the United States to submit the question to arbitration, as follows:

Mr. Hodgins makes a strong appeal for arbitration of the question, and it is certain that, if the case could be determined on its merits, as in law courts, this would be best for the interests of both parties. Certain phases of the case are adapted for arbitration, others are not. International arbitration, international justice, in these very important respects, the arbitrators have seemed to regard themselves as partisans, and not impartial judges; and absolute failure of the proceedings has been averted only by a decision which was privately, if not publicly, admitted to be not based on the merits of the case, but only on the convenience of the party in which the weaker party was given the least that would shut its mouth. In one case, that of the Delagoa Bay arbitration, it is acknowledged that the result was a scandalous miscarriage of justice, where the outraged plaintiffs submitted on the principle that a crust of bread is better than nothing.

The United States did not submit the Alaskan Boundary to arbitration court. With a little experience has been had of the workings of The Hague tribunal, it may prove that justice, and not political influence, will be the guide of the body. An international supreme court is sadly needed, and this one, as yet untried in any really momentous question, may fill the role. If so, the boundary can only be decided there with general approval. Until then a masterly inactivity may be more prudent. At any rate, some means should be taken of informing the general public of the ascertained facts without exception; a knowledge of which in this, as in many other cases, would do much to abate the bitterness of argument.

We do not remember any such arguments as that appearing in the United States press during the crisis over Venezuela. Surely save for the British goose is safe for the American gander. In addition to this, however, the apology is somewhat weakened by the fact that the United States agreed to arbitrate the matter, provided points under American jurisdiction and settled with Americans were excluded from the reference, provided, in other words, that the United States should not be compelled to give up anything of value to it, even if it might be found to have been wrongfully acquired and wrongfully administered. The Alaskan Boundary question is a blot on the fair name of the United States, which does not seem to be big enough and broad enough to be fair and upright in its international dealings.

Both the imports and exports of Great Britain showed a large increase during the month of September.

In the year 1900 the fifty-five pen and pencil manufacturers of the United States turned out writing material worth $4,222,148, of which $2,222,276 was the value of the pencils, $906,454 of fountain and stylographic pens, $739,078 of gold pens and $294,340 of steel pens. The capital invested in the business was $3,671,741.

The Thanksgiving turkey which adorned the columns of the Colonist yesterday was about all the Thanksgiving turkey the people of Victoria saw. The supply of turkeys was decidedly limited, and if there is any vital connection between Thanksgiving and roast turkey, the festival this year was unsatisfactory.

What is said to be the largest increase in postal receipts in the history of the service is recorded in the reports of the gross receipts of fifty of the largest post offices in the United States for the month of September. The comparison is made with the corresponding month of last year. The offices whose returns are embraced in the report furnish approximately half the entire postal revenue of the country. The returns indicate a net increase of 20 per cent, as compared with September, 1901.

British Bark in From Caldera —Opposition Tugboats For the Cape.

Blakely Will Be Sold This Afternoon to Pay Wages of Her Crew.

The only arrival from the deep sea yesterday was the British bark Harold, 1,239 tons, Belding, master; one of the fleet which had been sent up the River of the Puma river for Liverpool. The Harold is from Caldera, to which port she took a cargo of coal from Newcastle. Capt. Belding reports an uneventful passage. She was towed to port by the tug Escort No. 2, one of the tugs running in opposition to the Puget Sound tugboat company. The opposition is now gathering up quite a fleet of tugs for the defense of the Puget Sound.

A LUNATIC AT LARGE.

United States Officials Searching for a Bad Man Near Mission City.

Last Friday Officer Lane, of Mission

City, corralled an escaped inmate of the Washington State Insane Asylum, who had about $90 in his possession, and was armed with a Smith & Wesson 38-calibre revolver. He gave his name as Harry Nobody. After being given a few nights' lodgings in the lock-up, he was taken in charge of the United States officers.

Keepers in the state asylum in Washington are hunting for another runaway, by the name of David Elder, who is supposed to have passed through

Mission City on Saturday, and is now presumably in Vancouver. This man claims to be a second Tracy. He has stated that he will show the public deeds that Tracy knew nothing about.

One of the keepers, who stopped at Mission a short time on Sunday, enroute for Vancouver, expressed considerable anxiety over Elder being still large. *

Musical Festival For Victoria

Great Work in Canada—Sir Alex.
Mackenzie of London to Conduct Chorus.

Mr. Charles E. A. Harriss Completes Plans From Atlantic to Pacific.

With all arrangements made for the immediate formation and rehearsal throughout the winter of a large festival chorus in Victoria which will prepare musical works to be given at two days musical festival in April under the conductorship of Sir Alexander Mackenzie. Mr. Charles E. A. Harriss, whose name counts for the best in music whenever he comes amongst us—successfully brings to accomplishment the herculean task undertaken in the cause, interest and development of greater music throughout the continent. Ideas worked out, productive of a consecutive series of musical gatherings embracing towns and cities in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec, Montreal, Manitoba, the Northwest Territories, British Columbia, will assuredly bring to the front and immensely benefit the young talent of our country, enhance the enthusiasm of Canada's music-loving people, and above all things else stir up the dormant musical element amongst us here as elsewhere. To sing the great choral compositions of foremost British composers, the conductorship of England's oldest and most widely known musical institution, the London Royal Academy of Music, is an honor to all those who will form the many different choruses, and whilst prevailing upon Sir Alexander Mackenzie to come to Canada and personally conduct these festivals no one, perhaps, was better able to form a more righteous judgment as to the worth of our countrymen in musical attainments, and what it most stood in need of to stimulate its growth and speedy advancement musically than the gentleman whose mind has brought about this grand scheme. Vancouver and Victoria are both to have a two days festival; in the sister city excitement is at high water-mark, applications to join the festival chorus, insuring a fine body of voices. The Victoria choir can contribute voices second to none, alone not in Vancouver, but elsewhere in proportion to its population, needs no gainsaying. Local singers with good voices and able to read music fairly well at sight are eligible for the chorus here, the works to be prepared and full particulars as to formation of the Victoria chorus will be announced in these columns before Mr. Harriss arrives the day also who will be appointed to the local assistance conductorship. The soloists will be engaged by Sir Alexander Mackenzie, they will come from England with him, consequently a very fine interpretation of the principal parts may be looked forward to. Following is a list of some of the most important choral and orchestral works to be performed during the contest.

Choral works, A. C. Mackenzie's "Dream of Jubilal," (composed for the jubilee performance of the Liverpool Philharmonic society); Mackenzie's "Story of Sayid"; Mackenzie's "The Cotter's Saturday night"; C. Hubert Parry's "Bluest Pair of Sirens"; (composed for the Bach Choir of London); Parry's "Ode to St. Cecilia's Day"; (composed for the Liverpool Chorus); Parry's "Joy"; Villiers' "St. Cecilia's Revival"; Stanford's "Battle of the Baltic"; Arthur Sullivan's "Golden Legend"; F. H. Cowen's "Coronation Ode"; (written and composed in honor of the Coronation of King Edward VII); Ed. Elgar's "The Banner of Saint George"; Frederick Bridge's "Ballad of the Claphamdon"; Coleridge-Taylor's "Hiawatha".

Eagle Theatre Party.—A number of the members of the Fraternal Order of Eagles have arranged theatre party for tonight at the Victoria theatre in honor of Mr. James Neill and others of his company, who are members of the order.

The Sunday Concert.—The holding of a sacred concert by the Royal Italian Band at the Victoria theatre on Sunday evening is being widely discussed in the city, the Lord's Day Alliance Society being most active in their efforts to prevent the concert being given on that date.

Project for Pulp Mills.—A movement is on foot looking to the establishment at an early date of an important pulp mill works on Quatsino Sound. Certain parliamentary concessions are necessary in the matter, and until these have been obtained little more can be said, possibly.

Hurrying the Work.—Though yesterday was Thanksgiving Day, and an occasion when almost all labor was given over for the time, the contractors and workmen were as busy as mairies, taking advantage of the prevailing good weather to push construction to an early conclusion.

Arca Stock Company.—The Arca Stock Company is in operation for dramatic entertainment at A. O. U. Hall this evening, when a vaudeville entertainment, with a programme including many specialties, will be given and tomorrow afternoon and evening the company will also appear in a vaudeville programme.

A Successful Entertainment.—The Thanksgiving tea given by the ladies' committee of the Wesleyan Methodist and Military church in the Soldiers' and Sailors' Home, Esquimalt road, was a very enjoyable and successful affair. There was a good attendance and the ladies are to be congratulated on their good work.

Building Progress.—Local architects have in hand plans for several cottages which are to be erected shortly on the lots known as "The Gridiron" on the Fountain, at the junction of Government and Douglas streets; and it is understood that some considerable building improvements will shortly be undertaken on the Finlayson estate, due to the placing of the large area facing Douglas street on the market recently.

Resumes Today.—The Curran-Whester case will be resumed today, under the charge of assault laid by Plaintiff Curran against Mrs. Whester.

He will be heard. There are four charges preferred against Curran by the Websters which are to follow. One of these, that of stealing Webster's pipe, will probably be withdrawn, for it seems that the pipe was picked up by Curran and afterwards turned over to the police. *

LOSS OF APPETITE.

Is commonly gradual; one dish after another is set aside till few remain. These are not eaten with much relish, and are often so light as not to afford much nourishment.

Loss of appetite is one of the first indications of disease. It is a bad sign, and there is nothing else so good for it as Hood's Saraparilla—the best of all tonics.

Accept no substitute for Hood's.

TOO LATE.

A North Side boy, five years of age, who had recently become the brother of another little boy, was sent to the grocery the other day to get some lard sugar. By mistake the grocer gave him granulated and the boy was sent home to have it again.

"How do you like your new brother?" asked the grocer, as he was weighing out the right kind of sugar.

"I don't like him very much," the little fellow answered. "He cries all the time."

"Why don't you change him, then, as you can't stand him now?"—Chicago Record-Herald.
